ST. PAUL CENTER FOR BIBLICAL THEOLOGY

Sacrifice of Praise By Dr. Scott Hahn

Today's Liturgy is a kind of identity check, reminding us of the virtues the Lord requires of His disciples—faith, hope and love. In the First Reading and Gospel, Israel's rulers are indicted for failing to grasp the essence of worship, the "inner logic" and purpose of their sacrifices, burnt offerings, and other religious observances. God desires mercy not sacrifice, Jesus tells us in the Gospel, quoting Hosea, whom we hear in the First Reading. Today's Psalm is equally blunt—God, who created the world in all its fullness, has no need for the flesh of bulls or the blood of goats. Today's Epistle and Gospel give us two role models to follow—Abraham and Matthew. Though Abraham was nearly one hundred years old and his wife was barren, he didn't doubt God's promise that he would become the father of many nations (see Gen 15:5). Matthew likewise responds to the Lord's call with obedience and trust. Like Matthew, we are called to follow wherever the Lord asks us to go. Like Abraham, in all things we should be empowered by faith and give glory to God—hoping against hope, fully convinced that what He has promised, He will deliver. This is what the Lord requires: that we love Him and strive to know His will. Today's readings should cause us to examine our conscience. Is our piety like that of Israel's leaders—like a morning dew that disappears in the heat of the day? Do we perform our religious duties while neglecting the weightier matters of bringing God's justice, love and mercy to sinners (see Mt 23:23)? It's not that we are to abandon our prayers and pious devotions. But our vows to the Most High must be animated by an inner spirit of self-offering, expressed in outward signs of mercy and love toward our neighbor. Let us come to this Mass, then, to offer praise as our sacrifice, glorifying God who, in raising Jesus from the dead, rescued us in our time of distress.

Receive a Weekly Email from Cardinal Seán & The Pilot:

Receive special messages from Cardinal Seán, content from Cardinal Seán's Blog, official press releases from the Archdiocese, and links to current stories from The Pilot, new programs from CatholicTV, resources for Mass & Prayer, a calendar of upcoming events around the Archdiocese and other helpful information to deepen Catholic faith life. Cardinal Seán hopes that the email list will grow to include every Catholic household in the Archdiocese that has an email account as well as everyone interested in learning about the ministries, activities and works of the Archdiocese of Boston. Cardinal Seán said, "This weekly email initiative will increase communication and connection among Catholics across the Archdiocese. As we celebrate our Bicentennial year, we have been reminded how Catholics have innovated to ensure that the saving message of Jesus Christ reaches as many people as possible. We want to continue that spirit of innovation and evangelization by utilizing the many new communication tools made possible by the recent advances in technology. I encourage every Catholic of the Archdiocese with an email account to sign up for this weekly email." Anyone wishing to sign up for the weekly email can do so at the Archdiocese's Bicentennial website, www.Boston200.org.

Ministers of Holy Communion: Several people have indicated a desire to serve the Parish as Ministers of Holy Communion. In order to prepare them for this important ministry we will have a training session at Saint Margaret's on Tuesday, June 10 at 7:00 P.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Parish Hall. If the Parish is to offer Holy Communion under both kinds, there is need for several more Ministers of Holy Communion. Please speak to Father George if you might consider this ministry.
